MALNUTRITION eLEARNING COURSE

The Malnutrition eLearning Course has been developed by the University of Southampton (UK), the London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine, and the International Malnutrition Task Force. It is a freely available course to train health workers across the world. In 2013, over 3,900 people enrolled in the course from over 140 different countries including students, undergraduates, health workers providing direct care to malnourished children, and others who needed to increase their knowledge of nutrition, such as lecturers and Ministry of Health officials.

The course is based on the WHO guidelines for the management of severe acute malnutrition and provides interactive learning across three modules. Module 1 includes the definition and classification of malnutrition; the visible and invisible changes caused by malnutrition and why malnourished children need different care from other children. Module 2 covers assessment and screening of children and Module 3 covers the management of malnutrition including the ten steps for successful management; how community and facility based approaches can be integrated to widen coverage; and why common conditions such as gastroenteritis, pneumonia and malaria have to be treated differently when there is coexisting malnutrition.

The course includes assessment and feedback on performance and a certificate of completion can be printed when the course is completed. For more information go to:

RESOURCES AVAILABLE THROUGH

<http://www.evidenceaid.org/resources/>

The Evidence Aid project uses knowledge from Cochrane Reviews and other systematic reviews to provide reliable, up-to-date evidence on interventions that might be considered in the context of natural disasters and other major healthcare emergencies. Evidence Aid seeks to highlight those interventions which work; those which do not work; those which need more research; and those which might be harmful; and to provide this information to agencies and people planning for, or responding to, disasters. A wide range of subjects is covered with extremely valuable information. The website is easy to navigate and well worth exploring.

NEW FILMS ON CERVICAL CANCER

Medical Aid Films has announced the release of three new films on the topic of cervical cancer. The suite of films includes:

- * Cervical cancer: Understanding prevention, screening and treatment (targets community health workers and communities);
- * Screening and treatment options; and
- * How to conduct VIA and VILI screening tests (both designed for skilled health worker training).

The films are free and distributed under license which allows them to be copied as many times as necessary providing the content is not altered and they are not sold. Each film is also available as individual chapters to better facilitate incorporation into e-learning modules and for faster download in areas with limited bandwidth.

The films can be downloaded from:

<http://www.medicalaidfilms.org/our-films/cervical-cancer>.

Copies of the films are also available in hard copy, on DVD, or memory sticks from info@medicalaidfilms.org.

CALL FOR EXPRESSIONS OF INTEREST

Virtual International Day of the Midwife 5 May 2014

The Virtual International Day of the Midwife (VIDM) celebrates the International Day of the Midwife by bringing midwives, students, consumers and all parties interested in childbirth from across the globe together using online electronic media. A variety of live online events are presented every hour for 24 hours on the 5th of May 2014 via web-conferencing facilities. These may include presentations about latest research or practice issues, informal discussions, panel discussions, meetings or story-telling. The start time will be 10.00 am 5th of May, New Zealand time.

The organising committee of the VIDM is now calling for Expressions of Interest which have a clear aim or purpose; focus on maternity care or midwifery; be of interest to an international audience; and be appropriate to the chosen media. While the EOI must be in English, presentations on the day in other languages are welcome. EOI from non-midwives and midwifery students are also welcome. Presenters need not be experienced in using electronic media - each presenter will be allocated a facilitator who will be able to give support at every stage. However, presenters do need to have access to a computer with reliable Internet access, a headset and preferably a webcam.

Further information is available from: admin@vidm.org.
