CNMF 21st BIENNIAL MEETING 2014

Historic constitutional changes endorsed

The 21st Biennial Meeting of the Commonwealth Nurses Federation was held in London Friday 7 March 2014. At the meeting, members endorsed a change of name to the Commonwealth Nurses and Midwives Federation. Other changes to the constitution were an expansion of membership categories and the addition of a values clause. In relation to the name change, the CNMF Board emphasised the inclusion of 'midwives' in the title did not constitute an endorsement of midwifery as a separate profession to nursing. In some Commonwealth countries, midwifery is a direct entry program and midwifery a separate, although closely linked, profession; however in other Commonwealth countries a nursing qualification is a pre-requisite to undertaking a midwifery qualification. An underpinning value of the CNMF is for countries to be self-determining in relation to this issue and for the CNMF to be inclusive of all countries of the Commonwealth. The same philosophy of inclusiveness was also behind the expansion of membership categories. The new constitution is available on the CNMF website: <http://www.commonwealthnurses.org>.

AWESOME!

This was the way participants at the 2nd Commonwealth Nurses Conference, Nurses and Midwives: agents of change, described the conference held 8-9 March 2014 in London. Two hundred nurses from 26 Commonwealth countries attended the conference which was held at the beautiful and historic Royal College of Physicians. The conference had four themes: maternal and child health; mental health; primary health care; and acute and chronic health care. Papers presented at the conference were of an exceptionally high quality. The papers will be uploaded to the CNMF website. The proposed dates for the 3rd Commonwealth Nurses Conference which will be held in London are 5-6 March 2016. The conference announcement and call for abstracts will be issued this coming September.

Susie has had an illustrious nursing career and has been an outstanding leader, nationally in Singapore, and internationally. The CNF has benefitted greatly from her energy, commitment and wisdom.
